Italy Plans To Prosecute U.S. Ex-GIs

Lieutenant, Sergeant Accused Of Slaying Major To Aid Reds

ROME, Aug. 16—Italian officials indicated today that extradition of two former American soldiers accused of murdering their commanding officer in a wartime partisan dispute may be asked this fall.

An Italian Foreign Office spokesman said that "no extradition proceedings yet have been instituted" against the two men "because the Italian Justice Department has not requested it."

The slain American was Maj. William V. Holohan, 40, of New York City. The U.S. Defense Department has announced he was poisoned and shot twice behind the German lines in Northern Italy because he withheld arms from Communist partisans.

Court officials at Verbania said the Italian prosecutor at Pallanza is now drafting legal proceedings against the former U.S. Army sergeant and lieutenant named in Holohan's murder.

THEY SAID the prosecutor plans to file a complaint to the U.S. Justice Department and that extradition proceedings this fall can be based on the complaint.

The slain man was given a dose of deadly potassium cyanide, then shot twice and killed as he groaned with pain on his bed the night of Dec. 6, 1944.

The Defense Department announced the ex-army sergeant admitted murdering Holohan for withholding arms from Communist partisans, but said the non-com claimed the lieutenant had ordered it.

(Editor's Note: Names of the two men, although released by the Defense Department, are presently being withheld by International News Service on the advice of attorneys.)

Groveport Is Peppered

Lockbourne Jet's Guns Misfire

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16 — The commanding officer of Lockbourne Air Force Base reported that one of his jet fighter planes accidentally fired into two houses, an auto and a trailer today in Groveport.

Col. George Humbrecht said some 1,700 rounds of ammunition from two .50-caliber machineguns were expended in the accidental firing, but that only four of them did damage.

He said the electrically-operated machineguns apparently short-circuited on a plane which developed difficulty on the take-off.

Colonel Humbrecht quoted the unidentified pilot as saying the cabin of his F-84 plane became overheated and when he turned back for landing, the guns "ran away with him."

No one was reported injured and Colonel Humbrecht said an investigation into the incident would be started immediately.

HE SAID ONE of the machineguns slugs shot away part of the latticework on the front porch of Groveport Mayor Clarence Stevenson.

Another ripped through the screen door of Henry Carters home, while a third punctured the rear of a trailer owned by Master Sergeant William R. King.

The only other damage reported was that done when one of the big bullets pierced the fender of an auto owned by Lyle Claffey of Obetz.

Colonel Humbrecht said the remaining rounds of ammunition apparently rained down on the open countryside. He unofficially estimated damage at about $100.

Real Estate Tax Deadline Nears

Monday has been set as the final day for payment of real estate taxes for the last half of 1950 in Pickaway County.

County Treasurer Robert Colville Thursday said he expects his office in Pickaway Court-house to be filled with persons in a last-minute rush to pay, although stating payments have been "good" so far.

VOLODYMYR HOLUBIW, Polish-Ukrainian who arrived in the U. S. July 11, has made a rapid adjustment to U. S. life. Holubiw was accorded a special welcome in N. Now a worker on a milk farm (above) near Boulder Junction, Wis., Holubiw, his wife and three small children have forgotten their years without a home and without a country.

TALKS TO BE OFF RECORD

Subcommittee Approved To Ponder Buffer Zone

KAESONG, Aug. 16—The Korean armistice conference set up a streamlined subcommittee today to "meet around rather than across a table" in an effort to crack the stubborn buffer zone deadlock.

The eight-man committee, including two delegates from each side plus staff members and translators, will hold its first meeting at 11 o'clock Friday morning (8 p. m. Thursday EST), in what an Allied spokesman termed an "almost cozy" atmosphere.

While it seeks to end the stalemate which has kept the Kaesong parley motionless for 16 sessions, the formal conference itself will be suspended until it is summoned to meet again by mutual consent.

Waning hopes of ending the costly Korean war were revived Thursday when the Communists accepted a United Nations proposal for creation of the subcommittee. It was the first agreement produced by the Kaesong talks since an agenda was adopted in mid-July.

THE ALLIED spokesmen, Brig. Gen. William F. Nuckols, stressed that the subcommittee will work as informally as possible. The committeemen will engage in give and take, off the record discussions, rather than the stiff speeches, rebuttals and sur-rebuttals which have marked the plenary sessions.

To promote this informality, a virtual news blackout will be clamped down on the subcommittee's deliberations.

Nuckols told correspondents at the UN base below Kaesong Thursday night that there will not be any nightly news briefings since "nothing the subcommittee decides will be binding" on the main delegations.

The information officer said he himself will not attend the new body's meetings and therefore will have no news to give reporters.

Admiral Turner Joy, head of the UN delegation, appointed Army Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes as one of the UN members and said he would name the second delegate before Friday's subcommittee session convenes.

Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red group, named North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Saon Cho and Chinese Gen. Hsieh Fang as the

Central Ohio Farmers Keep Fingers Crossed About Lack Of Rainfall

A Central Ohio dry spell moved into its 46th day Thursday with no immediate relief in sight for the area's worried crop growers.

In Pickaway County, the situation generally is not considered critical. But rural observers had their fingers crossed, said rain must come within the next few days or damage can be expected.

John Boggs, local Production Marketing Administration chief, pointed out that there is some damage now in upland, gravelly fields, but this is only spotty.

But for the most part, Pickaway corn is in good shape and considered about two weeks ahead of the 1950 growth, he said.

Present sweet corn is said to be good, but the late crop may be stunted unless moisture appears shortly.

Burned-out pastures are curtailing crop and milk production.

J. R. Bridenstine, secretary of the Central Ohio Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., said that milk supplies in Central Ohio are dropping off fast and that

Explosions Rip Plant

2 Are Killed In Naphtha Blast

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16 —An explosion, felt for a distance of six miles, ripped the naphtha plant of the Esso Standard Oil Co. refinery here today and plant officials said at least two persons were killed.

Seven other persons were injured. W. B. Cotten, public relations director for Esso, said two unidentified men were killed.

The injured were taken to two Baton Rouge hospitals and the Esso plant hospital.

Cotten said the explosion and fire which followed "looks like its pretty wide-spread," in the plant's south field section. Two hours after the initial blast shattered windows three miles away, Cotten said the fire was still confined to the naphtha plant—a series of storage and processing tanks interconnected.

The blast demolished and burned eight freight cars which were being switched in the area.

Five storage tanks of the naphtha plant system — 15,000 and 20,000 gallon capacities — were ablaze.

Fire-fighters joined the battle to keep the flames and terrific heat from setting afire huge 10,000-barrel storage tanks, of which there are hundreds spread over a large area.

All available ambulances were rushed to the scene and Baton Rouge fire-fighting equipment sent to augment Esso's own fire-fighting crews.

The sprawling Esso plant—largest single refining unit in the nation—lies approximately three miles from downtown Baton Rouge, where the shock of the explosion shattered window glass.

al agent said early corn has been severely damaged and production has already dropped 10 to 15 percent.

The Cleveland area and north-eastern and northwestern part of the state is faring pretty well where rain is concerned.

Growing corn is in no danger and oats yield is good in the Cleveland area with the farmers in the 14-county milk shed are turning prematurely to grain feed in a desperate attempt to halt production declines.

Meanwhile, weather forecasters said no immediate relief is in sight for the area's worried crop growers.

A dry, cool air mass moved slowly out of the northwest and crossed into Ohio, bringing a temporary respite from hot temperatures and high humidity in most parts of the state.

"The air mass is dropping temperatures into the mid 80s today and we can expect a period of cooler weather for the next two days," the weather forecaster said Thursday.

Light showers of short duration are expected to visit the northern part of the state around Lake Erie. However, there is no sign of any large amounts of rain for several days, he added.

Dr. I. J. Falconer, head of Ohio State university's department of agricultural economics, told Franklin Countians that unless a substantial down-pour of rain comes within the next ten days about 20 percent of the county's corn crop may be ruined and the rest stunted.

In Hamilton County, Charles Ingraham, associate county agent, said corn crops in the area are injured so seriously now that belated rains would not even help.

Some corn has begun to "fire," the lower leaves drying out and the kernels shriveling in the heat. Observers said the dried out fields and pastures are also threatening the growth of vegetables and crops next year.

Toledo farm areas were saved temporarily by Tuesday's rainfall. Don E. Coleman, head of the weather bureau at Toledo Municipal Airport, said, however, that this would be the critical week for crops, especially corn.

Corn in Wood and Lucas Counties, he said, had begun to "fire."

Deaths Of Human Guinea Pigs Being Probed

VERMILLION, S. D., Aug. 16 —University of South Dakota officials will be asked today to explain the strange deaths of two employees who voluntarily took injections in a scientific experiment.

The two human "guinea pigs"—Jack Clifford, 30, a lab technician, and Mrs. Ardy Pearson, 26, a department secretary—died yesterday after getting the injections late Tuesday.

Both became ill Tuesday night and were hospitalized.

The deaths were announced by University President I. D. Weeks, who declined to reveal the nature of the injections or the cause of death.

Dr. Donald Slaughter, dean of the university's school of medicine, said the experiment was part of research being conducted in the mechanisms of pain.

An autopsy was conducted, but no results were released.

The attorney general's office at Pierre has sent an agent to Vermillion to investigate.

Yanks, Flips Sign Pact To Give Mutual Defense

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The United States and the Philippines today announced agreement on a mutual defense treaty aimed at offsetting any Russian attempt to sabotage the Japanese peace pact.

The State Department said the U. S.-Philippines security agreement will be signed "during the first day of September," presumably during the Japanese peace negotiations in San Francisco.

The American government pointed out that the bilateral treaty is a part of the "growing treaty fabric" in the Pacific area and that it exemplifies President Truman's repeated warnings that the U. S. "will not tolerate attack" against the Philippines.

The treaty draft said the pact was drawn up so that "no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that either the U. S. or the Philippines stands alone in the Pacific area."

BOTH NATIONS pledge that they will settle disputes between themselves "by peaceful means" and will maintain and develop their respective capabilities to resist armed attack.

The treaty is to remain effective for an indefinite time, but provision is made that either country can break it off one year after giving notice of such intention.

Lieutenant, Sergeant Accused Of Slaying Major To Aid Reds

ROME, Aug. 16—Italian officials indicated today that extradition of two former American soldiers accused of murdering their commanding officer in a wartime partisan dispute may be asked this fall.

An Italian Foreign Office spokesman said that "no extradition proceedings yet have been instituted" against the two men "because the Italian Justice Department has not requested it."

The slain American was Maj. William V. Holohan, 40, of New York City. The U.S. Defense Department has announced he was poisoned and shot twice behind the German lines in Northern Italy because he withheld arms from Communist partisans.

Court officials at Verbania said the Italian prosecutor at Pallanza is now drafting legal proceedings against the former U.S. Army sergeant and lieutenant named in Holohan's murder.

THEY SAID the prosecutor plans to file a complaint to the U.S. Justice Department and that extradition proceedings this fall can be based on the complaint.

The slain man was given a dose of deadly potassium cyanide, then shot twice and killed as he groaned with pain on his bed the night of Dec. 6, 1944.

The Defense Department announced the ex-Army sergeant admitted murdering Holohan for withholding arms from Communist partisans, but said the non-com claimed the lieutenant had ordered it.

(Editor's Note: Names of the two men, although released by the Defense Department, are presently being withheld by International News Service on the advice of attorneys.)

The lieutenant, when told by INS of the charges against him, described the announcement as "interesting" but added, "I have no comment to make."

The lieutenant has resigned the job he held with a New York City firm.

A spokesman for the company said today the ex-lieutenant telephoned his office yesterday afternoon, said he was entirely innocent of the charges, but would resign if the company wished.

NO IMMEDIATE action was taken. But last night the man telephoned again, the company stated, and insisted that his resignation be accepted. He told the company he was leaving town immediately.

The sergeant replied to all questions: "I have nothing to say."

The Defense Department said that because of legal technicalities the two accused men could not be prosecuted either by U.S. military or civilian courts.

However, the State Department called the Italian government's attention to the case yesterday. The action was interpreted as an offer to extradite the two men to Italy for prosecution there.

The Defense Department gave this version of the bizarre slaying:

Holohan — six-foot, two-inch Harvard law school graduate — was picked to head a team of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) and was sent behind German lines in Northern Italy with $100,000 in gold, Swiss francs and U.S. dollars.

Two Italian-speaking assistants—the lieutenant and sergeant—were assigned to help him carry out his dramatic mission of supervising distribution of arms to Italian guerrillas fighting the Germans.

The assistants first administered poison in Holohan's soup, then shot him twice in the head and finally thrust his body into a sleeping bag and dumped it in Lake Orta, near Siena, Italy.

Later the lieutenant staged a fake Nazi raid on their villa, the department charged, to conceal the crime and to account for the major's disappearance.

HE REPORTED to his headquarters that Holohan vanished when the team scattered to evade capture.

The Defense Department said the sergeant's confession corroborated confessions made by two Italian partisans who took part in the murder and now are facing trial in Italy.

Officials said that a bitter quarrel between Communist and non-Communist Italian partisans apparently lay behind the murder and that Holohan sided with the non-Communists.

The slain man refused to authorize the dropping of arms to the Communists apparently because he feared they would be used in some future attack.

Many Persons Forget Free Parking Setup

Circleville's coffers suffered little Thursday because of the free parking offered in the meter area during "dollar day."

By force of habit, many persons parking in the downtown business area automatically fished into their pockets for change to feed the meters.

Making up for those persons who were alert enough to save money by neglecting the meters was the steady flow of traffic in the downtown area, including the many persons who forgot the free parking feature of the day.

Abe Greenlee, special meter officer for the city, took city council at its word when it ordered a vacation for him for the day.

Greenlee himself participated in the "Dollar Day" spirit by shopping in downtown stores Thursday.

"But I stayed up next to the buildings," Greenlee said. "I was afraid that if I walked out near the street some people might see me coming and start putting money in the meters."

Admiral Turner Joy, head of the UN delegation, appointed Army Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes as one of the UN members and said he would name the second delegate before Friday's subcommittee session convenes.

Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red group, named North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Saon Cho and Chinese Gen. Hsieh Fang as the two Red delegates to serve on the joint body.

The subcommittee was charged with the task of seeking "objectively to work out a solution" of the buffer zone issue, as Joy phrased it.

Its work will be informally pursued, Joy had pointed out Wednesday that "one of our difficulties is the formality of the utterances of each delegation regarding the points at issue."

If it can find a solution, the subcommittee will make recommendations to the full delegations which they will act formally upon them.

The key problem of where to draw a military demarcation line and demilitarized belt across Korea has blocked all progress at the Kaesong conference through 16 of its 26 plenary sessions.

From the moment the question arose, following agreement on the agenda, the UN has stood firm on the principle that an armistice line must generally approximate the present battlefield and afford defensible positions to Allied forces.

The Communists have rigidly insisted that Parallel 38—the old political border between North and South Korea—be fixed as the basis for a buffer zone.

However, at Wednesday's Kaesong session Nam Il for the first time indicated the Reds might be willing to negotiate a cease-fire belt lying generally north of the parallel.

Then came Joy's dramatic subcommittee proposal which the Reds took under overnight advisement and then accepted on Thursday.

Spray-Painting Crew Is Sought

Pickaway County authorities Thursday were seeking five men who allegedly charged a Pickaway Township farmer $3,000 for one day's work of spray-painting.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he has been notified that five men with modern spray equipment reported for work this week on a farm near Kingston.

The sheriff said the men put on one day on the job, painting two barn roofs, a shed, henhouse, garage and house, then cashed checks of $200 and $2,800 given by the farmer on Kingston First National Bank. Complaint is that the crew "took advantage" of the 84-year-old farmer.

The Yale weather expert says the salad as a meal just doesn't provide the proteins needed for a good day's work—and that's as true in December as it is in July.

Moreover, he explained, it's all in the skin, not the mind. If you eat hot, protein-rich foods, your blood circulation is better. When it gets too hot outside, the

Red-Tinted Book Is Offered To U.S. Leaders

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 — A former Institute of Pacific Relations official admitted today that he attempted to place before U. S. leaders a book on China by a writer since accused of being a Russian agent.

Edward C. Carter, ex-secretary general of the IPR, testified he attempted to have the book read by Defense Secretary Marshall, the late Sen. Vandenberg, Sen. Morse, (R) Ore., Sen. Ives, (R) N. Y., and John Foster Dulles.

Senate Internal Security Committee Counsel Robert Morris said that Israel Epstein, author of the book, "The Unfinished Revolution in China," had been named by ex-Red spy queen Elizabeth Bentley as a Soviet agent.

Carter denied that he knew at the time that Epstein was a Communist agent, or that he believed the book to be an "open epistolary" of Communism.

He said his purpose in trying to get Marshall and others to read the book was part of the IPR's aim of "furnishing diverse opinion so the public, press, government and business could make up its mind."

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Non de olume will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

In answer to "Interested Citizen"—your letter to the Editor mentioned several questions which I should have anticipated.

When I wrote the letter, I hoped to clarify the thinking on the method being used to obtain City Manager government. I have talked to several persons and find that they have misunderstood the method involved.

There are two methods available to obtain City Manager government. One is the direct method and involves putting to the voters at only one election the question of adopting the City Manager form in the General Code of Ohio. The other is, to use your own words, "roundabout" and involves a charter and two elections.

Several people with whom I have talked believe that the direct method is now being used. Actually the advocates of City Manager government in Circleville City Council have chosen the round-about method because the direct method could not be used until the 1953 elections. They considered it more advantageous to start now with the round-about method than wait two years until they were able to use the direct method. There might be one further advantage of the round-about method. City Manager government under the direct method must be as it appears in the General Code of Ohio, while under a charter (round-about), it can be molded to fit the exact needs of the community.

If you, as an advocate of City Manager government, are to succeed in your desire, you ought to know what is involved. It was with that idea that I wrote the letter.

Since the commission, if one is chosen, has power to propose any form of government, it would therefore be your duty as an advocate of City Manager government to elect to the 15-member commission persons who support City Manager government and no other. I agree with you that the method is indirect and perhaps confusing, but if you are really serious about City Manager government, you should know, as you say, "the legalities" now and act accordingly.

You ask the question of what is the sense in going to the polls if Mayor-Council government is involved. From your point of view, the possibility that the commission may propose a Mayor-Council form is a hazard of the method involved. From another point of view a Mayor-Council form under a charter (round-about) may be made to differ from the Mayor-Council form which we have now that the city would be materially benefited. Just as a City Manager plan under a charter may be molded to fit the exact needs of the community, so a Mayor-Council form under a charter may be molded to fit the exact needs of the community.

Interviews Given In Selection Of Healthiest Pair

Health interviews for Pickaway County 4-H Club boys and girls competing in the 1951 health achievement program were held Thursday in the county board of health.

The interviews, conducted by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, were given to select finalists for the health achievement award contest.

Each of the 4-H Clubs in the county has been invited to enter representatives in the contest. One boy and one girl from the county will be selected to represent local clubs in a statewide contest to be held during the 1951 Ohio State Fair.

Following the interviews, physical examinations will be given to the finalists as a final part of the selection program.

In addition to the examination the youngsters will be judged on club health work and contribution made by the contestant toward his club's health program.

Only 25 percent of the scoring is awarded for personal health, while 50 percent is scored for health work completed by the club and 25 percent is for the individual's contribution to the club program.

Kraft Finishes Basic Training

Pvt. Paul D. Kraft of Circleville Route 4 recently was graduated from his 16-week basic training course with the 5th Infantry Division at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

His schooling included the use of light and heavy infantry weapons, how to live in the field, and combat tactics. Combat-toughened veterans of World War II conducted most of the training with the famed Fifth "Red Diamond" Division.

AFL Giving Up On Merger Deal With CIO Unit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Top AFL officials said today they have decided to break off working relations with the CIO after a long attempt to merge the two groups into a possible united labor organization.

An AFL spokesman said that a resolution "on the subject" has been approved by the 15-man executive council for submission to the AFL's annual convention in San Francisco Sept. 17.

The action apparently means an inevitable termination of the United Labor Policy Committee which has been organized labor's voice in the mobilization program and in the congressional controls battle.

However, AFL officials asserted that the organization intends to maintain its relations with the government as it has in the past without participation in the policy committee.

AFL leaders were said to be dissatisfied over the progress of merger talks started last Summer with the CIO.

The AFL wants an outright merger while the CIO believes the two groups should merely cooperate in legislative and other matters to pave the way for unification at a later date.

Cooper Qualifies As Paratrooper

Pvt. Frederick L. Cooper, son of Roy W. Cooper of 234 Pearl street, Circleville, was recently graduated from the basic airborne course of the Ft. Benning, Ga., Infantry School as a qualified paratrooper.

The course is designed to train volunteer officers and enlisted personnel from all arms and branches of the service as qualified paratroopers. Students are required to make five jumps from an airplane including one with full equipment.

Ann Arledge of Circleville and Mrs. Rachael Wilson of Chillicothe.

Service will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday in Lebanon church in Eagle Mills.

The department charged that the lieutenant "organized the death plot."

The announcement said that after Holohan was slain the lieutenant "openly cooperated with the Communist Party (and) was able to deceive his own headquarters by reporting the (arms) drops were being given to other groups."

The department said the lieutenant also apparently embezzled a considerable large sum of money entrusted to him by the major, but there is no evidence on how he spent it.

Holohan's body since has been recovered from the lake where it was tossed. Because of the extreme cold at the time of his death, the body was in a nearly perfect state of preservation.

School Levy To Be Sought

Ex-Mobster Tied To Legitimate Investments

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Senate crime probers were told today that former bigtime bootlegger Abner "Longie" Zwillman concealed numerous legitimate investments by using New York Lawyer Arthur Garfield Hays as a trustee.

The testimony was given by Jules Endler, an Orange, N. J., businessman, after a former Treasury agent told the committee that Zwillman was once a kingpin in a $50 million rum running syndicate.

Edwin A. Baldwin, retired Treasury intelligence officer, also charged that secret government reports on the bootlegging operation were stolen from Internal Revenue files.

Endler said that two of Zwillman's business interests were motion picture production companies which made films starring Fred Allen, Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche.

He added that others involved in the deals, including "the people in Hollywood," did not know the ex-mobster had an interest.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. No date will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

In answer to "Interested Citizen"—your letter to the Editor mentioned several questions which I should have anticipated.

When I wrote the letter, I hoped to clarify the thinking on the method being used to obtain City Manager government. I have talked to several persons and find that they have misunderstood the method involved.

There are two methods available to obtain City Manager government. One is the direct method and involves putting to the voters at only one election the question of adopting the City Manager form in the General Code of Ohio. The other is, to use your own words, "roundabout", and involves a charter and two elections.

Several people with whom I have talked believe that the direct method is now being used. Actually the advocates of City Manager government in Circleville City Council have chosen the round-about method because the direct method could not be used until the 1953 elections. They considered it more advantageous to start now with the round-about method than wait two years until they were able to use the direct method. There might be one further advantage of the round-about method. City Manager government under the direct method must be as it appears in the General Code of Ohio, while under a charter (round-about), it can be molded to fit the exact needs of the community.

If you, as an advocate of City Manager government, are to succeed in your desire, you ought to know what is involved. It was with that idea that I wrote the letter.

Since the commission, if one is chosen, has power to propose any form of government, it would therefore be your duty as an advocate of City Manager government to elect to the 15 member commission persons who support City Manager government and no other. I agree with you that the method is indirect and perhaps confusing, but if you are really serious about City Manager government, you should know, as you say, "the legalities" now and act accordingly. You ask the question of what is the sense in going to the polls if Mayor-Council government is involved. From your point of view, the possibility that the commission may propose a Mayor-Council form is a hazard of the method involved. From another point of view a Mayor-Council form under a charter (round-about) may be made to differ from the Mayor-Council form which we have now that the city would be materially benefited. Just as a City Manager plan under a charter may be molded to fit the exact needs of the community, so a Mayor-Council form under a charter may be molded to fit the exact needs of the community.

Interviews Given In Selection Of Healthiest Pair

Health interviews for Pickaway County 4-H Club boys and girls competing in the 1951 health achievement program were held Thursday in the county board of health.

The interviews, conducted by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, were given to select finalists for the health achievement award contest.

Each of the 4-H Clubs in the county has been invited to enter representatives in the contest. One boy and one girl from the county will be selected to represent local clubs in a statewide contest to be held during the 1951 Ohio State Fair.

Following the interviews, physical examinations will be given to the finalists as a final part of the selection program.

In addition to the examination the youngsters will be judged on club health work and contribution made by the contestant toward his club's health program.

Only 25 percent of the scoring is awarded for personal health, while 50 percent is scored for health work completed by the club and 25 percent is for the individual's contribution to the club program.

Kraft Finishes Basic Training

Pvt. Paul D. Kraft of Circleville Route 4 recently was graduated from his 16-week basic training course with the 5th Infantry Division at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

His schooling included the use of light and heavy infantry weapons, how to live in the field, and combat tactics. Combat-toughened veterans of World War II conducted most of the training with the famed Fifth "Red Diamond" Division.

Hearst Rites Due Friday

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16—Funeral services for William Randolph Hearst will be held here at 11 a. m. tomorrow in Grace Cathedral.

The body of the publisher lay in state today in the chapel of the cathedral, located atop Nob Hill in San Francisco where he was born 83 years ago.

The dynamic publisher will be buried beside his father and mother in San Francisco's Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Correction Made On Church Meet

Scioto Primitive Baptist Association will hold its 174th annual meeting this weekend in Walnut Township school instead of in Turkey Run church as previously reported.

The Association will begin its programs at 10 a. m. Friday in the Walnut school building and continue through Sunday with special worship and singing services.

AFL Giving Up On Merger Deal With CIO Unit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Top AFL officials said today they have decided to break off working relations with the CIO after a long attempt to merge the two groups into a possible united labor organization.

An AFL spokesman said that a resolution "on the subject" has been approved by the 15-man executive council for submission to the AFL's annual convention in San Francisco Sept. 17.

The action apparently means an inevitable termination of the United Labor Policy Committee which has been organized labor's voice in the mobilization program and in the congressional controls battle.

However, AFL officials asserted that the organization intends to maintain its relations with the government as it has in the past without participation in the policy committee.

AFL leaders were said to be dissatisfied over the progress of merger talks started last Summer with the CIO.

The AFL wants an outright merger while the CIO believes the two groups should merely cooperate in legislative and other matters to pave the way for unification at a later date.

Cooper Qualifies As Paratrooper

Pvt. Frederick L. Cooper, son of Roy W. Cooper of 234 Pearl street, Circleville, was recently graduated from the basic airborne course of the Ft. Benning, Ga., Infantry School as a qualified paratrooper.

The course is designed to train volunteer officers and enlisted personnel from all arms and branches of the service as qualified paratroopers. Students are required to make five jumps from an airplane including one with full equipment.

Ann Arledge of Circleville and Mrs. Rachael Wilson of Chillicothe.

Service will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday in Lebanon church in Eagle Mills.

The department charged that the lieutenant "organized the death plot."

The announcement said that after Holohan was slain the lieutenant "openly cooperated with the Communist Party (and) was able to deceive his own headquarters by reporting the (arms) drops were being given to other groups."

The department said the lieutenant also apparently embezzled a considerable large sum of money entrusted to him by the major, but there is no evidence on how he spent it.

Holohan's body since has been recovered from the lake where it was tossed. Because of the extreme cold at the time of his death, the body was in a nearly perfect state of preservation.

School Levy To Be Sought

Circleville Township rural school district will seek a new three-mill tax levy during the November elections for current operating expenses.

The new levy is to be asked for a period of three years at a rate not to exceed 30 cents for each $100 of valuation in the district.

Ex-Mobster Tied To Legitimate Investments

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Senate crime probers were told today that former bigtime bootlegger Abner "Longie" Zwillman concealed numerous legitimate investments by using New York Lawyer Arthur Garfield Hays as a trustee.

The testimony was given by Jules Endler, an Orange, N. J., businessman, after a former Treasury agent told the committee that Zwillman was once a kingpin in a $50 million rum running syndicate.

Edwin A. Baldwin, retired Treasury intelligence officer, also charged that secret government reports on the bootlegging operation were stolen from Internal Revenue files.

Endler said that two of Zwillman's business interests were motion picture production companies which made films starring Fred Allen, Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche.

He added that others involved in the deals, including "the people in Hollywood," did not know the ex-mobster had an interest.

YOUTHS PARADE IN BERLIN

'Peace' Rallies Are Masks To Cover Commie 'Hate'

BERLIN, Aug. 16 — Unconvinced or curious Eastern children have acted as Pied Pipers in leading hundreds of thousands into free West Berlin, but the frightening aspect of the big Red youth festival remains.

Those alarmed by the Nazi rallies in Germany before the war note the familiar sights today of more uniformed children on the march and under "peace" slogans which cannot mask the Communist theme of preaching hate against the West.

Russia and its satellite leaders have taken over where Hitler left off. The color of the uniform is different, but not the main goal—to mold young minds to a rigid political doctrine.

A five-year-old "Communist" delegate led a British contingent in the opening festival march, and one British newspaper could not refrain from saying that this kid "no doubt is the symbol of his companions' political maturity."

OLDER BRITISH Communist delegates, dressed in their blazers and gray flannels, have shocked their non-Communist countrymen because they have such ready, pat, answers for every political question. Naturally the South Koreans and Americans "invaded" North Korea to start that war, they say. West outside Eastern Europe also have been segregated from eastern delegates. They also have been given top rations—7,400 calories of food daily against the normal East German ration of 1,150 calories.

Officials of the Moscow-directed Communist carnival obviously are a long way from the Marxist goal of equal sharing, but they have given equal treatment in the distribution of pictures of Premier Stalin in the billets and tents.

The Communist official strategy should not be under-rated in any way by the West, however.

All kids love parades. So do a lot of adults. The East German boys and girls turned into brush and bucket commandoes also probably liked their job of painting slogans on the highways into Berlin.

"Americans, Go Home," is a dominant slogan, along with that subtle Communist way of planting in young minds the double slogan: "Fight—For Peace."

Laundry Firm Sold To City Native, Son

Circleville Laundry and Dry Cleaning Co. is now being operated by a man (and his son) who returned to this city after an absence of many years.

New owners are Bernard R. Porter, who was graduated with the last class (1918) from old Everts high school here, and his son, Paul R. Porter.

Purchase of plant and facilities was made from Cecil Van Camp.

The Porters arrived in Circleville after having made their homes in Omaha, Nebr., the last 11 years.

The elder Porter, born and raised in Circleville, has purchased the Orrin Brown home, 567 North Pickaway street, plans to occupy in about a month. The younger Porter, father of two girls, has leased an apartment on Northridge road.

The elder Porter has a brother and sister living here, Carl Porter and Mrs. Nell Drake. A sister-in-law is Miss Nell Anderson.

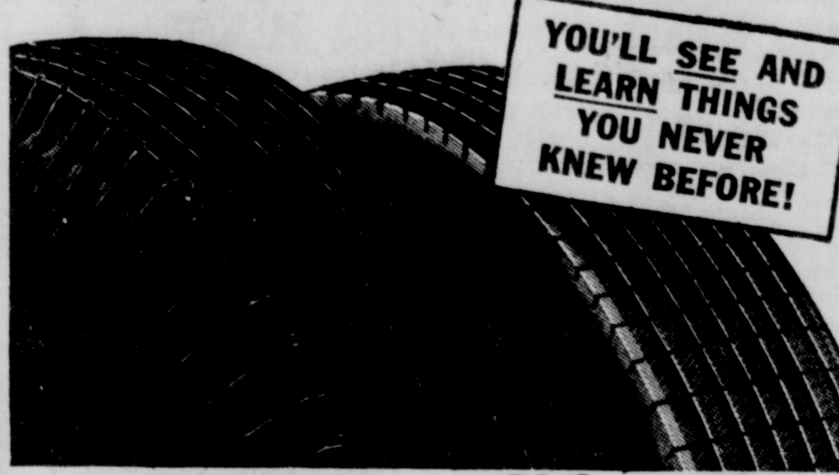

As soon as the new owners have become fully acquainted with the local plant, the company name will be changed to Porter's Laundry and Dry Cleaning Co.

A laundry machinery technician is due here next week to make a detailed check of equipment.

United States railroads have ordered 173,152 new freight cars since the Korean war started.

Berlin, they say, lives under a "reign of terror."

Yet it was noted in wry fashion that some of these convinced British Communists crossed into West Berlin to ask the latest cricket scores and to see English papers to try to get some news of the non-Iron Curtain world.

These Britons, it also was learned, were somewhat dismayed to find that their passports were lifted as soon as they entered Communist East Berlin. They were given identity cards and promised return of their passports only after the end of the rally.

The few Americans at the meeting, the Britons and others

Admiral Joy Keeps Calm In Kaesong

Oriental Patience Is Being Matched

KAESONG, Aug. 16 — Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, a thin faced, tight lipped Missourian, is living up to his heritage of "having to be shown" by beating the Oriental at his own game of patience.

Joy, a fighting sailor saddened to a desk and then suddenly thrown in to conduct armistice negotiations for a predominantly ground war, has led the United Nations delegation through 24 harrowing meetings.

During this time he and his cause have been accused of being "absurd," "arrogant" and "self contradictory" by an Oriental schooled in the virtue of patience.

The Oriental, North Korean Gen. Nam Il, has almost lost his veneer of inscrutability, but Joy remains as a pinnacle of aloofness.

HE HELD HIS calm front through 10 tedious meetings that always seemed on the verge of disaster as the two delegations argued and cajoled over what would appear on the agenda.

Except for one instance, he remained calm through the 14 succeeding sessions in which Nam and Joy have locked horns on where to draw a demarcation line across Korea.

The one exception, when Joy broke away from his usual "coolly logical" phraseology, brought on a change in the adamant Red stand that may lead to a settlement of the issue.

It was last Saturday that Joy the sailor told Nam the politico-militarist: "You did not come here to stop the fighting. You did not come here to negotiate an armistice. You came here to state your price—your political price for which you are willing to sell the people of Korea a temporary respite from pain."

It was a rough statement uttered by a rough man in clipped Midwestern tones.

IT SENT NAM IL, the patient Oriental, hustling from the conference room with an angry

No Gripes Heard By OPS Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The first hearing by a board of review under the nation's price-wage controls law broke up quickly yesterday for lack of anything to hear.

The board met to consider a protest from a Richmond, Va., truck line, Woodfin Brothers, but no representative of the firm appeared.

After a short wait, board staff members telephoned the firm's attorney, E. Neil Rogers, also of Richmond. Rogers explained he was not in Washington because he sent a telegram last night to the Office of Price Stabilization saying his client no longer had a protest.

flush on his cheeks and with an emotional wave of his arms.

Joy, the inscrutable, with the balance of peace and war riding on his shoulders, stepped calmly from the conference building and playfully snapped the picture of an American photographer waiting in the courtyard.

It was one of the few times he was so relaxed at Kaesong.

To insure against any leaks, he has consistently refused to answer any questions.

Greeted by a newsmen with a "nice day isn't it, admiral," his reply will be "is it?"

His unhurried, patient outlook follows him from Kaesong to the guarded confines of the armistice camp where no newsmen is allowed.

At the camp, he almost nonchalantly tosses off the worries of the day by attending a movie on a sandbag seat or throwing a baseball with other delegates, usually Generals Hodes and Craigie.

Joy invariably wears a fielders glove.

Whether Joy is pitching military logic at Kaesong or baseball at the base camp, he handles himself equally well. Says the press briefing officer, Brig. Gen. William Nuckols: "He looks as though he has played some ball before."

Admiral Joy Keeps Calm In Kaesong

Oriental Patience Is Being Matched

KAESONG, Aug. 16 — Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, a thin faced, tight lipped Missourian, is living up to his heritage of "having to be shown" by an Oriental at his own game of patience.

Joy, a fighting sailor saddled to a desk and then suddenly thrown in to conduct armistice negotiations for a predominantly ground war, has led the United Nations delegation through 24 harrowing meetings.

During this time he and his cause have been accused of being "absurd," "arrogant" and "self contradictory" by an Oriental schooled in the virtue of patience.

The Oriental, North Korean Gen. Nam Il, has almost lost his veneer of inscrutability, but Joy remains as a pinnacle of aloofness.

HE HELD HIS calm front through 10 tedious meetings that always seemed on the verge of disaster as the two delegations argued and cajoled over what would appear on the agenda.

Except for one instance, he remained calm through the 14 succeeding sessions in which Nam and Joy have locked horns on where to draw a demarcation line across Korea.

The one exception, when Joy broke away from his usual "coolly logical" phraseology, brought on a change in the adamant Red stand that may lead to a settlement of the issue.

It was last Saturday that Joy the sailor told Nam the politico-militarist:

"You did not come here to stop the fighting. You did not come here to negotiate an armistice. You came here to state your price—your political price for which you are willing to sell the people of Korea a temporary respite from pain."

It was a rough statement uttered by a rough man in clipped Midwestern tones.

IT SENT NAM IL, the patient Oriental, hustling from the conference room with an angry

No Gripes Heard By OPS Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The first hearing by a board of review under the nation's price-wage controls law broke up quickly yesterday for lack of anything to hear.

The board met to consider a protest from a Richmond, Va., truck line, Woodfin Brothers, but no representative of the firm appeared.

After a short wait, board staff members telephoned the firm's attorney, E. Neil Rogers, also of Richmond. Rogers explained he was not in Washington because he sent a telegram last night to the Office of Price Stabilization saying his client no longer had a protest.

The Near East— Next Red Victim?

By KINGSBURY SMITH
Europe Manager, International News Service

Editor's Note: There is a mounting belief in the Arab states that United States foreign policy "neglected" them to an extent that would make them easy prey for Soviet Russia. This aspect of the dangerous Near East situation is discussed in the following article.

ANKARA, Aug. 16—One of the major causes of discontent in the turbulent Near East today is widespread Arab belief that American policy has condemned that area to Soviet occupation if Russia precipitates a third world war.

Arabs think American policy envisages the eventual liberation rather than the defense of the Near East in the event of a major conflict.

SYRIAN, Lebanese and other Arab leaders told this correspondent they are convinced that Western Allied strategy is based on holding the approaches to the Eastern Mediterranean rather than defending the Near East.

This has intensified their bitterness against the Western attitude towards Israel and their hatred for the Jewish state.

It is causing "neutrality" with respect to the world struggle between Russia and the West to gain ground at an alarming pace in the Arab world.

NEVERTHELESS, it reflects the general resentment of the Arab world against what is felt to be a deliberate Western policy of neglecting the security of the Near East.

This resentment was forcefully expressed by Lebanese Prime Minister Abdullah Aylafi. Asserting that the United States was centering its attention on strengthening the defense of Turkey, Greece, Iran and Israel, Aylafi said:

"The security of the Arab nations, which constitute a vitally important strategic area, is being absolutely neglected."

He further warned that the Arab people were likely to adopt a "passive" attitude towards the Western cause in world affairs if the alleged policy of "utter neglect" with respect to the security of the Arab states and their vital interests continues.

Former Syrian National Defense Minister Akrama Hawrani, who is head of the Socialist Party and is expected to become the new premier of Syria, likewise says that there is a strong trend towards neutrality in the Arab states.

"It is due," he said, "partly to the lack of any definite Western guaranty to defend the Near East, but chiefly because of the pro-Israeli attitude of the Western Powers."

"THE ARAB people are losing faith in the Western World. In the event of a world war, they would definitely prefer to remain neutral."

This man, who signed the Communist-sponsored Stockholm peace propaganda appeal, said there was far more fear in Syria of the danger of Israeli expansionism than of Soviet Imperialism.

One of the most broad-minded and intelligent men with whom the writer talked in the Arab world, Michel Chiha, Lebanese publisher and editor of the French language newspaper Le Jour, is advocating creation of a regional Mediterranean security pact.

"This would be a logical complement to the Asiatic Pact," he said. "The strategic and military division that is being maintained in the Mediterranean now tends to aggravate the political and social dissensions.

"If the Arab world, which traverses the Mediterranean, can be brought into closer contact with Atlantic life, much will be gained for the civilization we both wish to maintain."

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Seventy-three-year-old Charles Hoffman lived in a $7-a-week Brooklyn rooming house, wore shabby clothes and received Social Security and unemployment insurance checks.

A fortune estimated at half a million dollars was found in a small black suitcase hidden in a closet.

With the fortune—gift-edged stocks, bonds and deposit slips—was found a ledger with dates running back to 1911, in which Hoffman had itemized his expenses. In a portfolio was an assortment of what police described as wildcat oil shares. Slips showed bank deposits totalling more than $40,000.

COLUMBUS LADY LOSES 48 LBS. IN SHORT TIME

Mrs. J. McIntyre, 152 W. Weishelmer Rd., Columbus 2, Ohio, writes: "I have been fighting overweight for many years and truly it was a hard thing to do. Therefore Renna Concentrate has been a blessing to me. When I started taking Renna a short time ago I weighed 196 lbs. Now I weigh 148 lbs. and feel 100% better. I feel that I can well recommend Renna as I still take it whenever I get that full feeling."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Renna Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Renna.

a friend of your own age the invitation would come also from your friend's mother. If it's a girl friend, it's usually OK to skip this formality, so long as you ask her if her mother approves. If she's reliable about things like this, you can probably take her word for it and consider yourself invited. If she's the impulsive type, better wait for an invitation from her Mom. But if the invitation is from a boy, never accept it unless you hear from his mother about it.

2—Arrive at the time the invitation states. If no time is mentioned, look up the train or bus schedule and let your friend know by telephone or mail what time you'll arrive so he or she can meet you.

3—Take along a gift for the hostess—your friend's mother.

This doesn't have to be elaborate or expensive—just something rather impersonal that you're rather sure will be useful: A box of fragrant bath powder, a dusting powder and cologne set, a bath mitt (a terry cloth affair filled with scented soap and skin-smoothing ingredients), a box of note paper, candy. 4—Write a "Thank You" note afterward to your friend or her mother. It can be brief, but should be appreciative.

Arabs think American policy envisages the eventual liberation rather than the defense of the Near East in the event of a major conflict.

SYRIAN, Lebanese and other Arab leaders told this correspondent they are convinced that Western Allied strategy is based on holding the approaches to the Eastern Mediterranean rather than defending the Near East.

They attribute this policy to reluctance on the part of the United States to re-arm the Arab states adequately for fear they would use the weapons against Israel.

This has intensified their bitterness against the Western attitude towards Israel and their hatred for the Jewish state.

It is causing "neutrality" with respect to the world struggle between Russia and the West to gain ground at an alarming pace in the Arab world.

This was marked most recently by the efforts of Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League, to arouse support for creation of an Islamic bloc stretching from Turkey to Indonesia, designed to become a great "third force" of neutrality.

Azzam made no headway whatever with this idea during his recent visit to Turkey, and it has been publicly rejected by some of the more reasonable elements in Lebanon and other Arab states.

NEVERTHELESS, it reflects the general resentment of the Arab world against what is felt to be a deliberate Western policy of neglecting the security of the Near East.

This resentment was forcefully expressed by Lebanese Prime Minister Abdullah Alyafi.

Asserting that the United States was centering its attention on strengthening the defense of Turkey, Greece, Iran and Israel, Alyafi said:

Recluse Found To Be Worth Half-Million

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Seven-year-old Charles Hoffman lived in a $7-a-week Brooklyn rooming house, wore shabby clothes and received Social Security and unemployment insurance checks.

The only factor which failed to fit into the picture of a tired, impoverished old man was Hoffman's 1951 automobile.

Last night the pensioner was found dead of a heart attack. Police investigating Hoffman's

How are your 'guest manners'? If you're planning to visit a friend this vacation, here's a quick check list to be sure you do the right thing at the right time. Correct manners give you confidence, more fun and popularity, you know.

1—If your invitation is to visit bare, top-floor room learned the answer to the new car:

A fortune estimated at half a million dollars was found in a small black suitcase hidden in a closet.

With the fortune—gift-edged stocks, bonds and deposit slips—was found a ledger with dates running back to 1911, in which Hoffman had itemized his expenses. In a portfolio was an assortment of what police described as wildcat oil shares. Slips showed bank deposits totalling more than $40,000.

a friend of your own age the invitation would come also from your friend's mother. If it's a girl friend, it's usually OK to skip this formality, so long as you ask her if her mother approves. If she's reliable about things like this, you can probably take her word for it and consider yourself invited. If she's the impulsive type, better wait for an invitation from her Mom.

But if the invitation is from a boy, never accept it unless you hear from his mother about it.

2—Arrive at the time the invitation states. If no time is mentioned, look up the train or bus schedule and let your friend know by telephone or mail what time you'll arrive so he or she can meet you.

3—Take along a gift for the hostess—your friend's mother.

This doesn't have to be elaborate or expensive—just something rather impersonal that you're rather sure will be useful: A box of fragrant bath powder, a dusting powder and cologne set, a bath mitt (a terry cloth affair filled with scented soap and skin-smoothing ingredients), a box of note paper, candy.

4—Write a "Thank You" note afterward to your friend or her mother. It can be brief, but should be appreciative.

COLUMBUS LADY LOSES 48 LBS. IN SHORT TIME

Mrs. J. McIntyre, 152 W. Weisheimer Rd., Columbus 2, Ohio, writes: "I have been fighting overweight for many years and truly it was a hard thing to do. Therefore, I decided to try the liquid Rennel Concentrate. It has been a blessing to me. When I started taking Rennel a short time ago I weighed 196 lbs. Now I weigh 148 lbs. and feel 100% better. I feel that I can well recommend Rennel as I still take it whenever I get that full feeling."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablepoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Rennel.

SUBSTITUTE MATERIALS

THE current defense program is resulting in more substitutions of materials in manufacturers for civilian use than was the case in World War II. Men's raiment is being fabricated more and more of rayon. That includes suits as well as shirts and other items of apparel.

A report is being widely circulated that at least one automobile manufacturer has replaced copper radiators with cooling tanks made of a substitute material that are causing overheating. It is inevitable that as scarcities crop up substitute materials will be called into play.

While there are frequently initial annoyances, inconveniences and expensive trouble when substitutions become necessary without adequate experimentation, such innovations frequently become permanent. With proper engineering substitute materials frequently can be made to function equally as well as those formerly used, and at less cost.

With labor costs constantly spiraling, manufacturers are compelled to call upon engineering skill and ingenuity to hold prices to a level the public will pay. Substitute materials used in automobiles in 1942, before manufacture of cars was suspended, were not too satisfactory. And synthetic tires did not provide sufficient traction on wet roads. But the main trouble was that changes were made overnight that could have been worked out more satisfactorily had more time been available.

LESS FOR EVERYBODY

A SURVEY reveals that 450 manufacturing companies in the second quarter this year had high gross income because of good production and sales, but their net profit was down considerably.

Omitting the highest profit companies, which did well because of record sales, it was found that profits of some of the larger industries had declined 23 percent while sales gained 14 percent.

Higher costs and taxes, by which process a relocation of income is being pursued in the United States as in Britain, is a serious matter. Income is being taken away from the companies which would use it to expand their facilities. Thus the dynamism of the country is being slowed.

Without expansion there will be fewer plants to keep production and jobs up to the level of increasing population. Then the government will step in to build publicly owned and operated plants. Socialism will then have its entire body through the door.

Socialism is the system of less for everybody. If anyone doubts that, let him look at the record of the socialist countries.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—It takes all kinds to make a city like this, he said philosophically, and some of the kinds only stay long enough for you to tip your hat to them. Consider, if you will, Ken Jury of Falls Church, Va.

For the last 26 years, Ken has been visiting New York three times a week, which, unless my buldog of an arithmetical mind has let me down, makes nearly 4,000 trips to the big town. He should know Manhattan like the back of his hand—and yet Ken Jury's New York is a tunnel, a few crowded blocks of West Side traffic, a warehouse, a shabby hotel, a diner and a Times Square movie house.

If the pony express can be said to have lived on, Ken Jury is, then, a pony expressman. He's a truck driver, a 42-year-old Virginia truck driver who drives what the trade calls a tractor pulling a carrying 10 tons or so of freight, mostly textiles. Only he doesn't haul them all the way on their appointed journeys; they usually are trucked up from Alabama to Washington by some other driver, and then Ken picks them up in Washington and makes that 225-mile trip to New York, through the dangerous territory peopled by the New Jersey autoist.

You figure a truck driver to look like—well, like a truck driver. Ken might upset your figures; he's medium-sized, with a lean face, sharp eyes, a little gray over the ears and the look of a New Englander farmer about him. He used to be a tech sergeant in ordnance, with four years in Hawaii and Luzon to his credit, and he's quiet

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

The record in the McCarran hearings is very different in places from the digests in news stories, but it could not be otherwise. For no newspaper could publish all the words of congressional hearings. There are too many of them.

Yet, perfect gems of testimony often appear in the record. For instance, this one: "Senator Ferguson. Don't you think that Lattimore told you in those two paragraphs that have been read that he was wanting you to follow the Commie line?"

"Mr. Carter. It would seem to me that he was assuming that I was and I denied it."

"Senator Ferguson. And wanted you to continue; is that right?"

"Mr. Carter. He was giving me a bouquet."

"The Chairman. He was approving of it?"

"Mr. Carter. Yes, I would prefer to address these questions to Lattimore because he would remember what was in it."

"The Chairman. Mr. Carter, when he said you were cagey, he was approving of it, was he not?"

"Mr. Carter. It was a bouquet."

"Senator Eastland. Why did not that letter raise a grave question in your mind at the very least as to whether Lattimore was a Communist?"

"Mr. Carter. My conviction was and is he was not and never has been, and second, this should be remembered: In the contest of 1938 where the political pattern of the world and the tensions were totally different from what they are now, we were feeling out to find out who were our Allies. We didn't care very much who they were, so long as they pasted the Japs and got us ready to beat the Germans."

"Senator Eastland. You say we followed the USSR line without the appearance of being subservient. That statement was not noticed (sic) to you he was a Communist?"

Now, in 1938, the United States was not at war with anybody and had no allies. Most persons, even very well-informed persons, did not expect a general war. Hitler and Stalin were secretly forming an alliance for the conquest of Europe. There had not yet been an invasion of Poland by Russia and Germany acting jointly. Japan and the United States were not at war.

It is the plausible excuse that is so often given by those who served Russia or favored Russia or were pro-Communist that their attitude was based on the circumstance of the times. I notice that in a controversy between Edward Weeks of the Atlantic Monthly and the editors of Counterrattack, Weeks adopts the same position. In a word, there are no absolutes in the world in which we live; that morals are of the moment, shifting as the tides of policy ebb and flow.

Many Americans during the war, while accepting the alliance with Stalin as necessary in time of war, rejected the concept of Stalin as a "good dictator." They realized that our alliance would be temporary, that Communism involves a permanent war against America. At the very time that E. C. Carter and the Institute of Pacific Relations were seeking allies in Russia, the Dies committee was trying to unearth Communists in America and Whitaker Chambers was rushing about seeking for someone to believe him.

The nation will have price control until June, 1952, and as much wage control as the politicians think is compatible with 1952 voting.

Oil Causes Irritation In Lungs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PARENTS and all who deal with the sick should use great care in the giving of medicines which have oily bases, to guard against any of the oil being drawn into the lungs. Cases of lipid or fat pneumonia have been traced to the careless use of oils used medicinally in nose drops, vitamin preparations and even mineral oil laxatives.

All oils are irritating to the lungs, but perhaps the most irritating of all are the fish oils. Although mineral oil is not immediately irritating, it is not absorbed nor can it be eliminated after it enters the lungs. Unfortunately, it is a bland substance which does not cause enough coughing to bring it up.

Respiratory Tract

Many things may encourage these oily substances to enter the respiratory tract rather than the digestive tract. Some of these are defects in the mouth, palate, tongue and swallowing mechanism. Many times, neurological disturbances, strokes, old age and general debility interfere with the ability to swallow and cause the oil to enter the lung.

It is important that laxatives not be administered so late at night that the half-asleep patient allows a few drops to trickle into the windpipe each time. The oil

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

THE TRAIL did a great deal of twisting, made another turn and suddenly emerged into a circular little clearing. Tonto instantly drew rein.

A shack sat there and a horse stood before the closed door, reins trailing. The shack evidently had been built by some nester and abandoned years before. The brush and trees had covered it and Tonto realized he must have caught a stray reflection of sunlight against one of its few windows. Then he noticed that the windows were gleaming clean, neat white curtains at each of them. The horse was saddled. It looked around, ears lifting. It whinnied and Tonto instantly leaned forward and clamped Star's muzzle.

It was too late. The door abruptly swung open. Tonto stiffened in sheer surprise. Ruby Sevier looked blankly at him, and a strange parade of emotions flicked across her face as quick as thought itself. She wore a light cotton house dress and a red ribbon kept her hair back from her forehead.

She caught herself and smiled. She stepped down from the door in a lithe, graceful movement. Her eyes deepened and the smile suddenly held a subtle promise that made Tonto's blood race.

"You've found me," she said in mock concern. "Light and come in."

Tonto dismounted and took his time lifting the reins over Star's head and dropping them. The unexpected appearance of Ruby Sevier in this hidden shack had caught him off balance and he needed the few seconds to adjust himself. At last he turned.

"You have invaded my secret playhouse, sir. Do I have your solemn word you'll keep silent about it?"

Tonto looked at the house, back at her. "Why?" he said abruptly. She laughed, made a little gesture with her hands.

"Can you imagine a grown woman playing house like a little girl? The darling biddies of Avirillo would say I'm insane. You know, they might be right. Never mind. Come in. There's no strings. Talk about it if you like."

She turned and opened the door. Tonto removed his hat and stepped in. He stared around him. There were three rooms here: the living room in which he stood, a kitchen directly back of it. To the left a narrow door opened into a bedroom. Tonto glimpsed a marble-top table with a tall and graceful lamp that had a flower painted bowl. A hooked rug was on the floor, one edge showing beyond the door.

Ruby took his hat and Tonto sank down into a chair.

She went out into the kitchen, called "Drink?" and didn't wait for his answer. She returned with a bottle and a glass, placed them on a small table beside Tonto's hand. Then she sat down herself.

"I had just finished cleaning and dusting. You nearly caught me."

Tonto poured a drink, eyes busy around the room. Ruby laughed at him. "Didn't you think I could? I'm really a homebody down under, you know."

"It's surprising. I'd never believed this place was here."

"How did you find it?" she asked.

"Saw the glint of your windows through the bushes and decided to investigate." He grinned. "Your housekeeping told your secret."

"I'll let the windows go dirty," she replied. "Really, it's not much of a secret. I guess everyone in Avirillo knows of this place if they'd think a minute. They know it's here but they've just forgotten."

"Nester?" Tonto said.

"Small place," she nodded.

"Started forty years ago. There was some trouble with the ranchers then and the owner just walked off and left it."

"And you just moved it?"

"Oh, no! I own it. The old nester had full title but no one knew where he had gone. Taxes piled up against it and finally it was put up for sale. I got it, the cabin and forty acres."

"Two houses," Tonto mused aloud. "A real lady."

"Thank you. I only rent the place in Avirillo from Ad Gilpin. This is mine—very secretly mine. Not even Bart knows about it."

"Too bad I spoiled it."

Ruby lowered her head. She eyed him closely as though to determine the exact angle of his jaw and chin. Her lips pursed slightly and then her eyes deepened. She slowly shook her head.

"No, you haven't spoiled it. That is, if you won't tell anyone else. Between us, you know. I ride out here a lot to get away from the Golden and the town. There are times when I think I'll choke back there. The men are not bad, I suppose. But a girl gets tired when every gesture and word can mean trouble unless she's careful."

Tonto shifted uncomfortably. He had never before thought of things like that from the girl's angle and he wondered how many he had unwittingly annoyed. Ruby didn't seem to notice his embarrassment.

"The women of the town are worse. Not that they talk to me! No, that would never do. But you

Tonto grinned. He arose and walked to the kitchen door, looked into the room. Vines over the window gave it a close resemblance to her place in town. Tonto turned and went to the bedroom, looking in it. Ruby remained in her chair, not even watching him.

"It's good," Tonto said. He returned to his chair and sat down. "How long have you been coming out here?"

"For years, I guess. I had it all fixed up long before I got title to it. I explored this tangle one day and found the place. I knew it had to be mine."

Tonto jerked his thumb toward the road. "Rick was shot right out there."

She looked up swiftly and her eyes clouded. "I know. I had the place then. But—I was in Avirillo that night. Maybe I'd been right here, she tapped the chair arm, "it wouldn't have happened."

"Maybe—maybe not." Tonto started rolling a cigar. "Ever looked over that spot of road?"

"Time after time. I keep thinking of poor Rick lying there and I try to figure out how he could have been killed. I've tried to act it out time and again, but—"

"Her voice drifted off."

"I wasn't thinking how," Tonto said slowly. "I'm pretty sure of that. It's who and why. For instance, who brought Rick up this road? The Slash S is in another direction. What brought Rick up here?"

"I've asked that, too," Ruby said, "and there just isn't an answer." She caught his steady look and her eyes widened. She leaned forward and made a swift, inclusive gesture with her hand. "You mean—this?"

"But it's all—Oh, this is ridiculous! Tonto, I told you this was my hiding place. Not even Bart Overby has been here. You can believe that or not."

Tonto sank back. "I believe you. I had to ask, Ruby."

She made a weary sign of acknowledgment with her hand. She plainly showed her irritation and Tonto couldn't exactly blame her. He stretched out his long legs and relaxed, quietly smoking. He let Ruby recover from her irritation in her own way.

Higher costs and taxes, by which process a relocation of income is being pursued in the United States as in Britain, is a serious matter. Income is being taken away from the companies which would use it to expand their facilities. Thus the dynamism of the country is being slowed.

Without expansion there will be fewer plants to keep production and jobs up to the level of increasing population. Then the government will step in to build publicly owned and operated plants. Socialism will then have its entire body through the door.

Socialism is the system of less for everybody. If anyone doubts that, let him look at the record of the socialist countries.

A rocket has reached a height of 135 miles. Perhaps serving as a pathfinder for the cost of living.

NEW YORK—It takes all kinds to make a city like this, he said philosophically, and some of the kinds only stay long enough for you to tip your hat to them. Consider, if you will, Ken Jury of Falls Church, Va.

For the last 26 years, Ken has been visiting New York three times a week, unless his buldog of an arthritic mind has let me down, makes nearly 4,000 trips to the big town. He should know Manhattan like the back of his hand—and yet Ken Jury's New York is a tunnel, a few crowded blocks of West Side traffic, a warehouse, a shabby hotel, a diner and a Times Square movie house.

If the pony express can be said to have lived on, Ken Jury is, then, a pony expressman. He's a truck driver, a 42-year-old Virginia truck driver who drives what the trade calls a tractor pulling a 32-foot trailer carrying 10 tons or so of freight, mostly textiles. Only he doesn't haul them all the way on their appointed journeys; they usually are trucked up from Alabama to Washington by some other driver, and then Ken picks them up in Washington and makes that 225-mile trip to New York, through the dangerous territory peopled by the New Jersey autoist.

You figure a truck driver to look like—well, like a truck driver. Ken might upset your figures; he's medium-sized, with a lean face, sharp eyes, a little gray over the ears and the look of a New Englander farmer about him. He used to be a tech sergeant in ordnance, with four years in Hawaii and Luzon to his credit, and he's quiet

These Days

The record in the McCarran hearings is very different in places from the digests in news stories, but it could not be otherwise. For no newspaper could publish all the words of congressional hearings. There are too many of them.

Yet, perfect gems of testimony often appear in the record. For instance, this one: "Senator Ferguson. Don't you think that Lattimore told you in those two paragraphs that have been read that he was wanting you to follow the Commie line?"

"Mr. Carter. It would seem to me that he was assuming that I was and I denied it."

"Senator Ferguson. And wanted you to continue; is that right?"

"Mr. Carter. He was giving me a bouquet."

"The Chairman. He was approving of it?"

"Mr. Carter. Yes, I would prefer to address these questions to Lattimore because he would remember what was in it."

"The Chairman. Mr. Carter, when he said you were cagey, he was approving of it, was he not?"

"Mr. Carter. It was a bouquet."

"Senator Eastland. Why did not that letter raise a grave question in your mind at the very least as to whether Lattimore was a Communist?"

"Mr. Carter. My conviction was and is he was not and never has been, and second, this should be remembered: In the contest of 1938 where the political pattern of the world and the tensions were totally different from what they are now, we were feeling out to find out who were our Allies. We didn't care very much who they were, so long as they pasted the Japs and got us ready to beat the Germans."

"Senator Eastland. You say we followed the USSR line without the appearance of being subservient. That statement was not noticed (sic) to you he was a Communist?"

Now, in 1938, the United States was not at war with anybody and had no allies. Most persons, even very well-informed persons, did not expect a general war. Hitler and Stalin were secretly forming an alliance for the conquest of Europe. There had not yet been an invasion of Poland by Russia and Germany acting jointly. Japan and the United States were not at war.

It is the plausible excuse that is so often given by those who served Russia or favored Russia or were pro-Communist that their attitude was based on the circumstance of the times. I notice that in a controversy between Edward Weeks of the Atlantic Monthly and the editors of Counterattack, Weeks adopts the same position. In a word, there are no absolutes in the world in which we live; that morals are of the moment, shifting as the tides of policy ebb and flow.

Many Americans during the war, while accepting the alliance with Stalin as necessary in time of war, rejected the concept of Stalin as a "good dictator." They realized that our alliance would be temporary, that Communism involves a permanent war against America. At the very time that E. C. Carter and the Institute of Pacific Relations were seeking allies in Russia, the Dies committee was trying to unseat Communists in America and Whitaker Chambers was rushing about seeking for someone to believe him.

The nation will have price control until June, 1952, and as much wage control as the politicians think is compatible with 1952 voting.

Oil Causes Irritation In Lungs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PARENTS and all who deal with the sick should use great care in the giving of medicines which have oily bases, to guard against any of the oil being drawn into the lungs. Cases of lipid or fat pneumonia have been traced to the careless use of oils used medicinally in nose drops, vitamin preparations and even mineral oil laxatives.

All oils are irritating to the lungs, but perhaps the most irritating of all are the fish oils. Although mineral oil is not immediately irritating, it is not absorbed nor can it be eliminated after it enters the lungs. Unfortunately, it is a bland substance which does not cause enough coughing to bring it up.

Respiratory Tract

Many things may encourage these oily substances to enter the respiratory tract rather than the digestive tract. Some of these are defects in the mouth, palate, tongue and swallowing mechanism. Many times, neurological disturbances, strokes, old age and general debility interfere with the ability to swallow and cause the oil to enter the lung.

It is important that laxatives not be administered so late at night that the half-asleep patient allows a few drops to trickle into the windpipe each time. The oil in the lung eventually causes a fibrosis or inflammation reaction of the lung tissue, making the lungs susceptible to frequent repeated attacks of bronchial pneumonia.

Diagnosis Difficult

It is difficult for the physician to make a diagnosis clinically of lipid pneumonia. The only treatment known is preventive, that is, to keep the oil from getting into the lungs.

The appearance of the oil in the X-ray plate sometimes resembles that of a cancer of the lung and the patient may be operated on in the belief that the condition is cancer of the lung. In view of their many hazards, great care should be used in the giving of oily substances.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. M. D.: What is the condition called when the opening between the stomach and intestine is closing up? What is the best cure for it?

Answer: The condition you describe may be due to either a spasm of the lower end of the stomach or the intestine, known as a pylorospasm, or to an ulcer of that part of the stomach or the first part of the intestine. The treatment depends upon the cause. If the obstruction is due to the formation of scar tissue as a result of an ulcer, operation is usually required.

Try, Stop Me

Near the conclusion of World War II, recalls John Pericola, a jeepload of Tito's soldiers was speeding along a sketchy, winding road in the Yugoslavian mountain country. Rounding the curve at high speed, the jeep plowed into an oxcart filled with natives. After the crash, they had the devil's own time separating the jeep from the Croats.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT THE TRAIL did a great deal of twisting, made another turn and suddenly emerged into a circular little clearing. Tonto instantly drew rein.

A shack sat there and a horse stood before the closed door, reins trailing. The shack evidently had been built by some nester and abandoned years before. The brush and trees had covered it and Tonto realized he must have caught a stray reflection of sunlight against one of its few windows. Then he noticed that the windows were gleaming clean, neat white curtains at each of them. The horse was saddled. It looked around, ears lifting. It whinnied and Tonto instantly leaned forward and clamped Star's muzzle.

It was too late. The door abruptly swung open. Tonto stiffened in sheer surprise. Ruby Sevier looked blankly at him, and a strange parade of emotions flicked across her face as quick as thought itself. She wore a light cotton house dress and a red ribbon kept her hair back from her forehead.

She caught herself and smiled. She stepped down from the door in a lithe, graceful movement. Her eyes deepened and the smile suddenly held a subtle promise that made Tonto's blood race.

"You've found me," she said in mock concern. "Light and come in."

Tonto dismounted and took his time lifting the reins over Star's head and dropping them. The unexpected appearance of Ruby Sevier in this hidden shack had caught him off balance and he needed the few seconds to adjust himself. At last he turned.

"You have invaded my secret playhouse, sir. Do I have your solemn word you'll keep silent about it?"

Tonto looked at the house, back at her. "Why?" he said abruptly. She laughed, made a little gesture with her hands.

"Can you imagine a grown woman playing house like a little girl? The darling biddies of Avirillo would say I'm insane. You know, they might be right. Never mind. Come in. There's no strings. Talk about it if you like."

She turned and opened the door. Tonto removed his hat and stepped in. He stared around him. There were three rooms here: the living room in which he stood, a kitchen directly back of it. To the left a narrow door opened into a bedroom. Tonto glimpsed a marble-top table with a tall and graceful lamp that had a flower painted bowl. A hooked rug was on the floor, one edge showing beyond the door.

Ruby took his hat and Tonto sank down into a chair. She went out into the kitchen, called "Drink?", and didn't wait for his answer. She returned with a bottle and a glass, placed them on a small table beside Tonto's hand. Then she sat down herself.

"I had just finished cleaning and dusting. You nearly caught me." Tonto poured a drink, eyes busy around the room. Ruby laughed at him. "Didn't you think I could? I'm really a homebody down under, you know."

"It's surprising. I'd never believed this place was here." "How did you find it?" she asked.

"Saw the glint of your windows through the bushes and decided to investigate." He grinned. "Your housekeeping told your secret."

"I'll let the windows go dirty," she replied. "Really, it's not much of a secret. I guess everyone in Avirillo knows of this place if they'd think a minute. They know it's here but they've just forgotten."

"Nester?" Tonto said.

"Small place," she nodded. "Started forty years ago. There was some trouble with the ranchers then and the owner just walked off and left it."

"And you just moved it?" "Oh, no! I own it. The old nester had full title but no one knew where he had gone. Taxes piled up against it and finally it was put up for sale. I—got it, the cabin and forty acres."

"Two houses," Tonto mused aloud. "A real lady."

"Thank you. I only rent the place in Avirillo from Ad Gilpin. This is mine—very secretly mine. Not even Bart knows about it." "Too bad I spoiled it," Ruby lowered her head. She eyed him closely as though to determine the exact angle of his jaw and chin. Her lips pursed slightly and then her eyes deepened. She slowly shook her head.

"No, you haven't spoiled it. That is, if you won't tell anyone else. Between us, you know. I ride out here a lot to get away from the Golden and the town. There are times when I think I'll choke back there. The men are not bad, I suppose. But a girl gets tired when every gesture and word can mean trouble unless she's careful." Tonto shifted uncomfortably. He had never before thought of things like that from the girl's angle and he wondered how many he had unwittingly annoyed. Ruby didn't seem to notice his embarrassment.

"The women of the town are worse. Not that they talk to me! No, that would never do. But you never feel that there's a moment when a pair of hidden, sneaking eyes aren't watching you. Sometimes you feel like you're living in a glass house. I have to get away or I might do some fool thing that would get me tarred and feathered."

Tonto grinned. He arose and walked to the kitchen door, looked into the room. Vines over the window gave it a close resemblance to her place in town. Tonto turned and went to the bedroom, looking in it. Ruby remained in her chair, not even watching him.

"It's good," Tonto said. He returned to his chair and sat down. "How long have you been coming out here?"

"For years, I guess. I had it all fixed up long before I got title to it. I explored this tangle one day and found the place. I knew it had to be mine."

Tonto jerked his thumb toward the road. "Rick was shot right out there." She looked up swiftly and her eyes clouded. "I know. I had the place then. But—I was in Avirillo that night. Maybe if I'd been right here," she tapped the chair arm, "it wouldn't have happened."

"Maybe—maybe not." Tonto started rolling a cigarette. "Ever looked over that spot of road?"

"Time after time. I keep thinking of poor Rick lying there and I try to figure out how he could have been killed. I've tried to act it out time and again, but—" Her voice drifted off.

"I wasn't thinking how," Tonto said slowly. "I'm pretty sure of that. It's who and why. For instance, who brought Rick up this road? The Slash S is in another direction. What brought Rick up here?"

"I've asked that, too," Ruby said, "and there just isn't an answer." She caught his steady look and her eyes widened. She leaned forward and made a swift, inclusive gesture with her hand. "You mean—this?"

"It's a wonder you hadn't been asked before." "But it's all—Oh, this is ridiculous! Tonto, I told you this was my hiding place. Not even Bart Overby has been here. You can believe that or not."

Tonto sank back. "I believe you. I had to ask, Ruby." She made a weary sign of acknowledgment with her hand. She plainly showed her irritation and Tonto couldn't exactly blame her. He stretched out his long legs and relaxed, quietly smoking. He let Ruby recover from her irritation in her own way.

Berger Hospital Guild 27 Plans-Revue And Luncheon

Women of Berger Hospital Guild 27, in spite of the hot summer weather, are thinking only of fall clothes these days for they are planning their second annual style show luncheon. This event—really two events—will be held Aug. 25 in Pickaway Arms with the first luncheon and show set for 11:30 a. m., and a repeat performance at 1 p. m.

At both shows, local women will be modeling garments from the stores of Circleville merchants.

A meeting of the guild will be held Monday evening in the home of its chairman, Mrs. Harry Diehl of Watt street, to complete plans for the social affair.

Although several committees have been selected and are now functioning, other appointments and names of models will be announced after Monday's meeting. At that time members will also "iron out" the many details connected with staging a luncheon style show expected to entertain over 300 women.

Mrs. Charles Richards has been named chairman of the modeling committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Emerson Spicer and Mrs. Henry Helwegen.

Tickets for either event may be obtained from Mrs. Fred Grant, Mrs. John Gordon or Mrs. Willis Liston.

Mrs. Joe Bell will act as commentator for the modeling and range music for the show.

Mrs. Charles Mowery has been selected to head the committee arranging the luncheon.

Ned Mapes Orchestra To Play Club Dance

Ned Mapes and his orchestra will be appearing for the Pickaway Country Club dance for members and their guests, Saturday from 10 p. m. until 1 a. m.

Featured entertainers with the orchestra are Judy Jordan, Freddy McNulty, Three Notes, Tune-Twisters, Glee Club, Ensemble, Brass Choir and Three Trumpeters.

Mapes and his Orchestra made a previous personal appearance here for the Mistletoe Ball last December at which time the organization was well received.

Playing a distinctively styled music, Ned has gained a definite mark of musical recognition. His versatile group's ability play dance tempos, that are not only danceable, but entertaining and listenable is the main reason for his success. This is a Mapes trademark which is familiar with dancers in Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Bringing his aggregation here from out of the Midwest, Ned and the orchestra have just completed successful runs in Parkersburg, W. Va., Huntington, W. Va., and Springfield.

Women of Berger Hospital Guild 27, in spite of the hot Summer weather, are thinking only of Fall clothes these days for they are planning their second annual style show luncheon. This event—really two events—will be held Aug. 25 in Pickaway Arms with the first luncheon and show set for 11:30 a. m., and a repeat performance at 1 p. m.

At both shows, local women will be modeling garments from the stores of Circleville merchants.

A meeting of the guild will be held Monday evening in the home of its chairman, Mrs. Harry Diehl of Watt street, to complete plans for the social affair.

Although several committees have been selected and are now functioning, other appointments and names of models will be announced after Monday's meeting. At that time members will also "iron out" the many details connected with staging a luncheon style show expected to entertain over 300 women.

Mrs. Charles Richards has been named chairman of the modeling committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Emerson Spicer and Mrs. Henry Helwagen.

Tickets for either event may be obtained from Mrs. Fred Grant, Mrs. John Gordon or Mrs. Willis Liston.

Mrs. Joe Bell will act as commentator for the modeling and range music for the show.

Mrs. Charles Mowery has been selected to head the committee arranging the luncheon.

Ned Mapes Orchestra To Play Club Dance

Ned Mapes and his orchestra will be appearing for the Pickaway Country Club dance for members and their guests, Saturday from 10 p. m. until 1 a. m.

Featured entertainers with the orchestra are Judy Jordan, Freddy McNulty, Three Notes, Tune-Whiskers, Glee Club, Ensemble, Brass Choir and Three Trumpeteers.

Mapes and his Orchestra made a previous personal appearance here for the Mistletoe Ball last December at which time the organization was well received.

Playing a distinctively styled music, Ned has gained a definite mark of musical recognition. His versatile group's ability play dance tempos, that are not only danceable, but entertaining and listenable is the main reason for his success. This is a Mapes trademark which is familiar with dancers in Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Bringing his aggregation here from out of the Midwest, Ned and the orchestra have just completed successful runs in Parkersburg, W. Va., Huntington, W. Va., and Springfield.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Recently Mrs. Myers and I took a day off to spend most of the time with four of our grandchildren (ranging from eighteen months to nearly six years in age) and their parents, who dropped in for a few days from a distance, (we have eight other grandchildren.)

First the father and I got out the big sand box and the sand which had been stored, and some of the sand tools; the large and small wagons; and the slide and teeter-totter.

The rope swing was there hanging from the tree on the lawn. After a few hours of fun with these playthings, we all drove a few miles to a lake with a good shallow beach.

A stout long boardwalk with its top about eight inches from the water led far into the lake. First the father put a towel at a place on the walk and explained to the three older children it was the limit beyond which they must not go. The two older children observed this limit literally. The third ventured once beyond this towel. Instantly his father gave him one lusty swat on his fundament and he was again told not to go beyond the towel. During the hour of fun thereafter, he never passed that limit.

ALL THREE OF the older ones have great fun jumping into the water from the walk, wading and trying to swim; also at catching and throwing a ball in the water. The two older ones were a bit timid of the water and were not forced to make ventures, but were gently led to have new experiences. The baby was led to put her feet and hands in the water at the edge and gradually was induced, but never hurried, to wade knee-deep with her mother.

When we returned home, the three older children changed clothes themselves. Lunch over, the whole quartet went to bed and slept for 1 1/2 hours—with no roughhouse, no calling, no commotion.

Then we all walked a quarter of a mile down the brook to a lovely waterfall, where the children slid down the falls and waded.

We all ate the three meals that day together, and all the youngsters ate with as much pleasure as the adults.

Just before bedtime, the mother, after the three older ones had bathed themselves practically alone, read a story to which they listened. The youngest begged to be among them, but disturbed the rest. Her father, without a word, carried her eldest came halfway down the steps twice on flimsy excuses. But within fifteen minutes all was silence among the little sleepers for the night. To be sure, I was much interested in observing the gentle, calm and skillful ways of the parents as in the children.

Though most of us grandparents think we could manage the grandchildren better than their parents can, we certainly could not have such a notion in this case. What impressed me greatly was the almost total absence of quarreling, among these youngsters—not just an accident, but from skillful ways of their parents at helping make each child feel himself a worthy person and member of the family group.

Answering Parents' Questions
Q. Why do you so often advise a tutor instead of one of the parents to help the lagging learner?

A. Parents rarely can be as calm and patient with their own child; and no child can learn anything well in an angry or strained atmosphere.

Russia's decision to attend the Japanese peace treaty conference next month in San Francisco has caused immediate fear that Moscow will try to torpedo the meeting.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, well known for his "walkouts," vetoes and bitter anti-Western tactics, will lead the delegation.

So it looks like there will be a rough time in San Francisco at what was to have been largely a routine signing of the treaty drafted by the United States in consultation with other Western leaders.

Japan surrendered six years ago Tuesday and Washington plans shortly to distribute the final draft of a lenient peace treaty, a document the United States believes is long overdue. Russia has been bitterly attacking the document and the entire means by which it was written. Certainly there is no belief that Moscow intends to sign it.

RUSSIA HAS HELD out for a treaty drafted by the Big Five, including Red China. That is, a conference where Moscow and Peiping would have veto powers.

The United States, Britain and others who carried the main brunt of the Far Eastern World War II struggle, want no part of such a conference suggested by Russia.

Despite widespread dissatisfaction with the treaty, American officials have expected a majority of the 50-odd nations to sign it.

Soviet propaganda against it did not worry them, but the Russian decision to send a delegation actually will cause uneasiness.

Some officials fear that Russia may spring a surprise announcement which will cause wavering among the Asian nations who dislike the treaty.

The basis for this fear has been the timing of two recent Soviet moves. First was the Soviet speech by UN Delegate Jacob Malik which resulted in the Korean cease-fire talks. Second was Russia's renewed bid for a Big Five (including Red China) conference to discuss peace.

NOW, IT IS argued, Russia might assign Gromyko to take the floor in the San Francisco Opera House, announce a dramatic Korean peace settlement offer and ask postponement of the conference.

If such an offer is made and its terms are sufficiently alluring, it might be attractive to several countries, particularly India, Burma, Philippines, Indonesia and other Asiatic lands which already have shown their dissatisfaction with the treaty terms.

Conceivably, the Communists may be dragging out the cease-fire talks in Korea not only in an attempt to get major concessions but also to wait for Moscow to announce an attractive offer at San Francisco.

Giraffe Dies On Long Trip
CINCINNATI, Aug. 16—An autopsy is to be held here today for a year-old giraffe called Food Show, which died late yesterday in Florence, Ky., en route to a new home in the Fort Worth, Tex., zoo.

The ten and a half foot animal was purchased from the Cincinnati Zoo for $3,500, but died after completing only 20 miles of its journey.

It was understood Fort Worth officials had insured Food Show with Lloyd's of London.

GOOD HEALTH TO ALL FROM REXALL

They Like it a Million!

Last week Buick set a proud record.

The millionth Dynaflo Drive* was delivered to a happy owner.

That's a new peak in popularity for modern drives which take you from a standing start to any cruising speed desired with a smooth, unfaltering swoop of power.

"The biggest advance since the self-starter" is what the motor-wise press called this Buick development back in 1948—and now a million owners can tell you how right that proved to be.

Here, they found, was a basically different way of delivering power.

It was the first drive to get completely away from any gears which function in a series of fixed stages—the first to apply supercharging principles that did new tricks with spinning oil.

And how folks loved it!

They loved the freedom from strain in traffic. And the new "sweetness" of ride which every passenger could enjoy.

They loved the command it gives them of every traffic situation—and the relaxation it contributes to a long day's drive.

They loved its extra safety in slippery going, and the improved control in mud and snow.

As they had a chance to pile up experience, they loved the unexpected savings of rear tire wear and reduced strain on all driving parts, from engine to differential.

And finally—they loved what it does for the value of a Buick, as reflected in the extra dollars that Dynaflo* adds to the resale price of a car.

Have you sampled this driving sensation?

There's no time like the present for discovering the thrills that more than a million Buick owners already know.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Tiger Hopfuls To Have Special Meeting Sunday

A special meeting for Circleville high school boys who plan to begin practice here Monday has been called for 1 p. m. Sunday in the high school building.

Tiger Coach Steve Brudzinski said he has called the special Sunday meeting to get the practice program organized and issue practice equipment.

Brudzinski himself will not be present for the first actual practice session of the year at 9:30 a. m. Monday.

The coach is enrolled in Ohio State university during the summer quarter with classes three mornings a week. However the coach will be present for all afternoon sessions and off-day mornings until the university quarter is ended.

Taking over in the absence of the championship producer mentor will be Assistant Coaches Tom Bennett and Dick West.

ABOUT 60 candidates for this year's Tiger gridiron team are expected to turn out for the early practices, including 10 returning lettermen. The practice sessions will be held at 9:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. Monday through Friday in Ted Lewis Park until school begins.

First game facing the Tigers, winners of South Central Ohio League championships for the last three seasons, will be an annual contest against Holy Rosary of Columbus Sept. 14.

Turpin Sure Of Victory

The 23-year-old British Negro, who wrested Robinson's crown from him in one of the ring's most stupendous upsets last month, meets the former champion in a scheduled 15-round return bout in New York's Polo Grounds, Sept. 12.

"I don't feel any different about this fight than any other," Randy said before embarking. "I look forward to a hard fight, but I think I shall still be champion when I return home."

Lausche 'Hot' In Golf Tuneup

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16—Warning to golf greats Sammy Sneed, Lloyd Mangrum and other Celebrity Golf Tournament entrants! Governor Lausche, one of the competing linksmen in the Aug. 20 pre-caddie tourney affair in Columbus, is the man to beat. Lausche whizzed around the Columbus course yesterday in 69 strokes—three under par. The governor covered the first nine in 36 blows—one over par—and then blistered the second nine in 33.

Leach Loses Out In 2nd Round Of National Match

Circleville's Ted Leach cleared one barrier Wednesday in the national Jaycee junior golf tournament in Durham, N. C., only to lose out in the contest later in the day.

Leach, one of 128 youngsters from throughout the nation to qualify for the match play portion of the contest, met and defeated Frank Card of Columbus in an early Wednesday match.

The Circleville lad held even with Card for the first 16 holes of the 18-hole match, pulling out in front on the last two holes for a 2-up victory.

However, Leach was eliminated later in the day in another match, losing to Denny Bolster of Silver Spring, Md., by a three and one count.

Of the six lads representing Ohio in the annual national Junior Chamber of Commerce test, five were defeated—Wednesday including Leach while the sixth was unmentioned.

IN OTHER MATCHES, Pat Schwab of Dayton, winner of the Ohio title last month, was defeated four and three by Dick Twiss of The Dalles, Ore.; George Frankendorf of Dayton

Kingston Wins By 11-0 Count

Kingston softballers posted an 11-0 shutout victory over Scioto Elks Wednesday in the new city industrial softball league in Ted Lewis Park.

Final game in the first round of the new league will be played at about 8:15 p. m. Thursday between Container and Lawless teams.

Coach Named

LIMA, Aug. 16—Allen Willoughby, a 1945 graduate of Lima Central high school, has been named to succeed Harry Schlott as head football coach at Lima St. Rose high school.

fell by a one-up count on 19 to Lester Ward of Badin, N. C.; and Ronnie Bell of Lima was defeated five and three by James Depiro of Belleville, N. J.

Bob Benning of Dayton, runner-up in this year's state match, was unmentioned. He either failed to qualify or was byed in the opening day rounds.

The Ohio contingent is expected to return as soon as all four qualifiers of the state tourney have been eliminated, meaning that if Benning is out the group should be returning late Thursday or Friday. The national contest will continue through Saturday.

Top Hatters To Seek Title Thursday Night

Top Hat softball team of Circleville will meet J. H. Butt softballers of Chillicothe at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in Portsmouth for this year's district softball tournament championship.

The Circleville team earned a crack at the district toga Wednesday night in Portsmouth with a 5-0 shutout victory over the same Butt team it will meet for the title Thursday.

Hatter swatters moved into position to challenge for the title earlier this week by winning the loser's bracket of the test.

However, in order to take the tourney title and earn a berth in the state contest later this year, Top Hat must beat the Butt team twice.

In its first meeting with the winner's bracket champs Wednesday, Hatter Hurler Ken Reid allowed only two safeties while whiffing 10 opposing batters to collect the shutout victory.

Pacing the Hat aggregation in batting was Harold Gulick, who rapped out a round-tripper in the first inning.

Line score of Wednesday's contest follows:
Butt's ... 000 000 0 — 0 2 4
Top Hat ... 220 001 x — 5 7 0

Columbus Dead Birds Lose 24th Of Last 27 Tilts

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16—Columbus continued its losing ways yesterday as the fabulous Mickey Mantle and the Kansas City Blues defeated the Redbirds 6-2.

The loss was the Flock's 24th in their last 27 contests. The Blues hammered three Columbus pitchers for 15 hits including five extra base blows and Mantle again was the scourge of the Birds.

Mantle doubled Don Bollweg home with Kansas City's first

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16—Columbus continued its losing ways yesterday as the fabulous Mickey Mantle and the Kansas City Blues defeated the Redbirds 6-2.

The loss was the Flock's 24th in their last 27 contests. The Blues hammered three Columbus pitchers for 15 hits including five extra base blows and Mantle again was the scourge of the Birds.

Mantle doubled Don Bollweg home with Kansas City's first run in the third and smashed a long homerun over the rightfield fence with two on in the fifth. Then the Blues tallied two more in the seventh.

Hurler Ernie Nevel held the Flock scoreless until the seventh when two runs came across as the result of a fly which Jackie Jensen miscued into a double.

The Toledo Mudhens, who are losing their general manager Sept. 9, surprised American Association boss team Milwaukee 4-1 after the Brewers had beaten the Hens 6-3 in a first game. Toledo's vice-president and general manager resigned yesterday on the heels of the hiring of Charley Gehring to replace his father, Billy Evans, as general manager of the Hens' parent Detroit club.

Tiger Hopefuls To Have Special Meeting Sunday

A special meeting for Circleville high school boys who plan to begin practice here Monday has been called for 1 p. m. Sunday in the high school building.

Tiger Coach Steve Brudzinski said he has called the special Sunday meeting to get the practice program organized and issue practice equipment.

Brudzinski himself will be present for the first actual practice session of the year at 9:30 a. m. Monday.

The coach is enrolled in Ohio State university during the summer quarter with classes three mornings a week. However the coach will be present for all afternoon sessions and off-day mornings until the university quarter is ended.

Taking over in the absence of the championship-producing mentor will be Assistant Coaches Tom Bennett and Dick West.

ABOUT 60 candidates for this year's Tiger gridiron team are expected to turn out for the early practices, including 10 returning lettermen. The practice sessions will be held at 9:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. Monday through Friday in Ted Lewis Park until school begins.

First game facing the Tigers, winners of South Central Ohio League championships for the last three seasons, will be an annual contest against Holy Rosary of Columbus Sept. 14.

Turpin Sure Of Victory

The 23-year-old British Negro, who wrestled Robinson's crown from him in one of the ring's most stupendous upsets last month, meets the former champion in a scheduled 15-round return bout in New York's Polo Grounds, Sept. 12.

"I don't feel any different about this fight than any other," Randy said before embarking. "I look forward to a hard fight, but I think I shall still be champion when I return home."

However, Leach was eliminated later in the day in another match, losing to Denny Bolster of Silver Spring, Md., by a three and one count.

Of the six lads representing Ohio in the annual national Junior Chamber of Commerce test, five were defeated Wednesday including Leach while the sixth was unmentioned.

IN OTHER MATCHES, Pat Schwab of Dayton, winner of the Ohio title last month, was defeated four and three by Dick Twiss of The Dalles, Ore.; George Frankenfeld of Dayton fell by a one-up count on 19 to Lester Ward of Badin, N. C.; and Ronnie Bell of Lima was defeated five and three by James Depiro of Belleville, N. J.

Bob Benning of Dayton, runner-up in this year's state match, was unmentioned. He either failed to qualify or was byed in the opening day rounds.

The Ohio contingent is expected to return as soon as all four qualifiers of the state tourney have been eliminated, meaning that if Benning is out the group should be returning late Thursday or Friday. The national contest will continue through Saturday.

Top Hatters To Seek Title Thursday Night

Top Hat softball team of Circleville will meet J. H. Butt softballers of Chillicothe at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in Portsmouth for this year's district softball tournament championship.

The Circleville team earned a crack at the district title Wednesday night in Portsmouth with a 5-0 shutout victory over the same Butt team it will meet for the title Thursday.

Hatter swatters moved into position to challenge for the title earlier this week by winning the loser's bracket of the test.

However, in order to take the tourney title and earn a berth in the state contest later this year, Top Hat must beat the Butt team twice.

In its first meeting with the winner's bracket champs Wednesday, Hatter Hurler Ken Reid allowed only two safeties while allowing 10 opposing batsmen to collect the shutout victory.

Pacing the Hat aggregation in batting was Harold Gulick, who rapped out a round-tripper in the first inning.

Line score of Wednesday's contest follows:
Butt's ... 000 000 0-0 2 4
Top Hat ... 220 001 x-5 7 0

Columbus Dead Birds Lose 24th Of Last 27 Tilts

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16—Columbus continued its losing ways yesterday as the fabulous Mickey Mantle and the Kansas City Blues defeated the Redbirds 6-2.

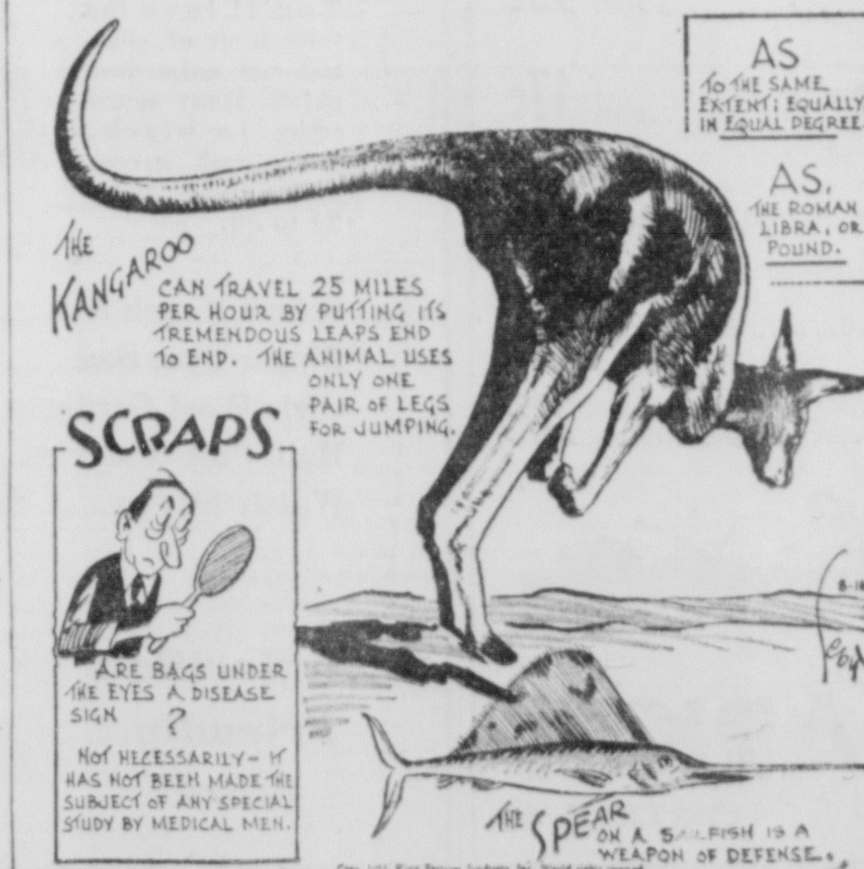

The loss was the Flock's 24th in their last 27 contests. The Blues hammered three Columbus pitchers for 15 hits including five extra base blows and Mantle again was the scourge of the Birds.

Mantle doubled Don Bollweg home with Kansas City's first run in the third and smashed a long homerun over the rightfield fence with two on in the fifth. Then the Blues tallied two more in the seventh.

Hurler Ernie Nevel held the Flock scoreless until the seventh when two runs came across as the result of a fly which Jackie Jensen miscued into a double.

The Toledo Mudhens, who are losing their general manager Sept. 9, surprised American Association boss team Milwaukee 4-1 after the Brewers had beaten the Hens 6-3 in a first game. Toledo's vice-president and general manager resigned yesterday on the heels of the hiring of Charley Gehring to replace his father, Billy Evans, as general manager of the Hens' parent Detroit club.

Farmers Asked: Would You Like To Be Your Hired Man?

Conditions Of Work Discussed

3 Main Points Are Considered

"Would you like to be your hired man?" is a question some farmers could be asking themselves.

Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, reported this week that information provided by state employment services in the Corn belt area tells "why the hired man leaves home."

The survey boils down to three main reasons. They are:

- (1) Prospect for better pay.
- (2) Hope for a nicer home and improved living conditions for the family.
- (3) Better working relationships.

There has been considerable attention given recently to the fact that expanding defense industries and other good-paying jobs in town are offering stiff competition for good farm hired men.

BUT, BEST SAYS, Successful Farming magazine suggests farmers have placed too much emphasis on this factor of pay, and have given too little regard to improving living conditions and working relationships.

The article says "we have passed the time when a hired man and his family can be put up in a tumble-down house, paid a monthly wage, and be given a cow to milk and a pig to butcher as extras."

Several former farm workers interviewed by the magazine agreed that if they could have the same home on the farm as the one they were living in now, they would change jobs tomorrow.

Few farmers can afford to rush out and build sparkling new homes for their hired men, but the big step is taken when he can sit down with this man's family and work out a definite schedule for both major and minor improvements.

These might include paint and wallpaper, storm windows and screens, landscaping, or new cupboards for the kitchen.

The third ingredient for keeping a hired man—good working relationships—finds most farms are behind the times. In view of scientific and mechanical advancements, these human considerations are all the more deplorable.

One farmer stated the need emphatically:

YOU HAVE TO put yourself in the other fellow's shoes. Some of us were more lucky than others. Just because we or our fathers got the breaks and are able to own land doesn't mean we're better than others.

"If the cards had fallen a little differently, we might have been the hired man and the other guy the boss. The thing to ask is this: Would YOU like to be YOUR hired man?"

According to the survey, the best wage program ought to include a fair monthly salary plus a bonus based on the success of the farm operation. Owners and hired men agree at the start that it is unrealistic to compare town wages and farm wages on a straight cash basis.

House rent, the milk bill, and other higher costs of living must be subtracted from city wages before the comparison is accurate.

City jobs, too, have definite financial advantages, it was pointed out. Among these are a chance for extra money through overtime pay, company hospitalization programs and paid vacations.

The survey believes bonus arrangements are wise because of the feelings of incentive and partnership they instill. A workable bonus plan should be adjusted to the volume of business of the farm, to the ability of the hired man, and to his length of service. Several bonus payments during the year were felt to be better than one payment at the end of the year. The bonus should be based on production or gross income. Those based on net income call for careful account keeping and perhaps a too intimate knowledge of the business by the hired man.
